Present an essential conference for Southern California:

4th Annual Working with Military-Connected Families:

Engaging Service Members, Caregivers, and Veterans to Build Resilience and Mitigate Risk in Military Connected Children and Families

Friday, August 5, 2016 • 8:30 am – 4:30 pm

(check-in, continental breakfast begin at 8:00)

Bob Hope Patriotic Hall

1816 South Figueroa Street

Los Angeles, California 90015

Why You Should Attend – Military-connected children and families (Active Duty, Veterans, National Guard, and Reserves) are a growing percentage of Southern California's communities; more veterans live here than in any other State! Nonetheless their unique strengths and resilience, as well as risks and challenges are often overlooked or misunderstood, such as the impact of transitions, traumatic stress or injuries on family life. Become informed about the best ways to identify, engage with, and meet the needs of those who have served and their families who served too.

Who Should Attend – Military-connected families, educators, caregivers, veteran service organization staff, peer navigators, faith-based community members, social workers, psychologists, child welfare workers, Vet Center personnel, domestic violence counselors, advocacy organizations, mental and behavioral health providers, housing staff, child care providers, health care providers, collaborative court personnel, and concerned community members.
